ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Climate change is presently a major global issue that impacts the environment and society in several ways. It has far-reaching effects on our planet, from increasing the frequency and intensity of many extreme weather events, including flooding and drought to changing sea temperature, ocean acidity and sea level. It also causes wild fire, shifting of rainfall pattern, melting of glaciers and snow which leads to rising of mean sea level. It causes global warming which may lead to water scarcity and increased the risk of agriculture and vulnerability of ecosystems. The seminar aims to analyse the impacts of climate change and find out a way to reduce the impacts that affect the environment and society.
